
SUMMARIES

Zinaida T. Golenkova, Yulia V. Goliusova
New Social Groups in Modern Stratification Systems of Global Society

In modern developed and developing societies precarisation labor relations is extensive. This phenomenon has given rise to a new social group in the social structure of modern societies, called prekariat.

Keywords: post-industrial society, the social structure of society, prekariat, precarisation of labor relations, employment, generation X.

Oleg N. Yanitsky
Metabolic Concept of Modern City

The author offers the interdisciplinary concept of modern large city based on the paradigm of socio-ecological metabolism. The essence of the offered concept is that a modern city may be presented as the network metabolic organism constantly implemented the transformation of one his substances in another (material, energetic, informational, etc.). In short, the key moment of the offered concept is the transformation of non-social matters and processes into social ones.

Keywords: city as an organism, urban environment, socio-ecological metabolism, interdisciplinary approach.

Tatiana A. Gurko
The Concept of Government Family Policy of Russian Federation over a Period 2025:
Suggestions for Improvement

In 2013 it was prepared the draft of the concept of government family policy of Russian Federation over a period 2025 by working group № 1 of the coordination council of the President of Russian Federation. The draft is on the advisory vote. In this article the main tendencies of family institution and suggestions for improvement of conception are discussed.

Keywords: family institution transformation, social policy, family policy, family values, parents, children, post-divorce situation, joint custody, social orphanhood, family courts, juvenile justice.

Polina M. Kozyreva, Alexandr I. Smirnov
Political Participation and Features of Development of Political Activity in Russia

The article considers the current problems and peculiarities of the evolution of political participation, new trends in the development of political activity of Russians. Estimated prevalence of various forms of participation of citizens in political life are characterized by difficulties of transformation of political attitudes, aspirations and sentiments in active operations, as well as the reasons for a certain inconsistency manifestations of political activity.

Keywords: political behavior, political participation, political activity, political life and democracy.

Youry I. Avdeev, Valery V. Arseniev, Vitaly N. Naidenko
Extremism in Modern Russia: Sources, Content, Typology

The article deals with the concept of extremism as a social phenomenon, its actors, goals and methods and its main trends. It presents a typology of the main kinds of extremism: by status of subjects, by the ideological and political basis of extremist activity and by content of extremist activity.

Keywords: extremism, state extremism, non-state extremism, political extremism, national extremism, religious extremism, ethnic and religious extremism, extremism among young people, social extremism, violent extremism, an advocacy extremism, organizing extremism and terrorism.

Natalia N. Zarubina
Between Ethics Beliefs and Ethics of Responsibility:
Transformation of the Moral Position of the Russian Youth

The author analyses the transformations of the morality in today's complex society on the basis of comparison of ethical systems that are based on the beliefs, service and responsibility. Ethical position of the Russian youth is characterized by underdevelopment of responsibility on the background the loss of beliefs.

Keywords: ethics beliefs, ethics of responsibility, the social transformations, youth.

Anatoly P. Diachenko, Margarita E. Pozdniakova
Social Preconditions of Legal Regulation of Promotion of Homosexuality and Other Sexual Deviations

The article discusses problems associated with homosexual behaviour: social attitudes and the position of religious institutions to the promotion of homosexuality, legalization of the same-sex marriages, and adoption of children by the same-sex couples. The measures of administrative sanctions for the promotion of different sexual deviations are considered.

Keywords: sexual minorities, homosexuality, legalization of the same-sex marriage, promotion of the homosexuality.